Why Summer 2017 is the Best Time to Sell Your Home in the Conejo Valley

by Susan Pascal

Is there a perfect season in which to sell your home? The time of year is often a factor but so, too, is the ever-fluctuating real estate market, according to Barbara Radke, CEO of the Radke Agency in Westlake Village.

Considered one of the top-selling realtors in the Conejo Valley, Radke left the corporate world in 2005. Inspired by the book “The Millionaire Real Estate Agent” by Gary Keller, founder of Keller Williams Realty International, Radke pursued a career in real estate.

In 2008 Radke became a partner with Keller Williams, Westlake Village. Her team, The Radke Agency, earned the #1 award for Team Listings in 2016 at Keller Williams’ Westlake Village Market Center.

Radke, who hails from Los Gatos, California, enjoys her life in Westlake Village with her husband, Tom, a private investigator. She has two children, Lauren, 26, a federal agent, and Travis, 24, a professional baseball pitcher in the San Diego Padres organization. Both recently married, the kids enjoy spending time with Barbara and Tom at their cabin in Montana.

Conejo365: Let’s get right to the issue. Why is this the best time to sell your home?

Barbara Radke: Currently, our inventory levels are the lowest they’ve been in quite some time. Plus summertime is when most buyers want to make the move. They want to wait until school is out. Then they want to make sure to get their kids settled into a new home and school district before the school year starts again in the fall.

365: How is the market doing right now?

Radke: The Conejo Valley is enjoying a strong start to the summer selling season, but a lack of midrange housing inventory (generally priced between $400,000 - $700,000) remains an issue and is pushing prices higher. The absorption rate is the rate at which available homes are sold during a given time period. It is calculated by dividing the average number of sales per month by the total number of available homes. Here in the Conejo Valley, the absorption rate is 2.35. First off, a “normal,” “healthy” market usually has six month’s supply of inventory. Anything under that may result in multiple offers since there aren’t very many homes for sale right now. It’s definitely a seller’s market.

365: What is the median sales price in the Conejo Valley right now?

Radke: The median single-family home price is $834,750.

365: Why is the Conejo Valley considered a good real estate market?

Radke: The Conejo Valley is one of the most affluent areas in the country. Being adjacent to national parkland that extends all the way to the ocean, we are able to enjoy a mild, year-round Mediterranean climate that offers warm, sunny, dry summers and cool winters, considered idyllic living conditions. Surrounded by rolling hills, majestic oak trees, and open space what’s not to love? The Conejo Valley schools both public and private are excellent and we have the additional academic benefit of having a college in town–California Lutheran University which helps to make this area extremely desirable for family living. All of these things along with our low crime rate is what brought us to relocate here from Scottsdale, Arizona 25 years ago.

365: If a homeowner is thinking of selling, what are the first steps he or she should take?

Radke: A home is typically the most expensive business transaction someone will ever be involved with in their entire lives. Unfortunately, many people ask more questions when getting their hair cut than they do when it comes to selling and buying their home. The first step they should take is to find two or three different agents that they’d like to interview. Some of the things they should look for are number of transactions on a yearly basis, whether they are a solo agent or on a team and, of course, past references.

365: What should a prospective home-seller do with their home before putting it on the market?

Radke: They should have a wood destroying pest and organism inspection done. In addition the Water Conservation Act was just passed–California law (Civil Code §1101.4)–requiring all single-family residences built on or before January 1, 1994 to be equipped with water-conserving plumbing fixtures after January 1, 2017.

365: How do solar panel systems affect sales?

Radke: It depends on whether a homeowner owns or leases their system. If a homeowner is looking to put in a system, there are pros and cons. They should be aware that if they want to sell their home, every solar company has different terms. If I were going to install a solar panel system, I would review the contract and/or lease carefully with a real estate attorney before signing it.

365: What else should a homeowner consider before showing their home?

Radke: People need to realize that the way you live in a home isn’t the way you sell a home. Take yourself out of the role of being a homeowner and put yourself into the role of being a buyer.

365: Is this where staging becomes a factor?

Radke: Absolutely! My agency offers a complimentary staging appointment. We bring our stager with us to do a walk-through of the home from room to room as well as the exterior of the home. The seller will then get a detailed written report on what can or should be done based on the seller’s budget, which includes links to make it easy for them to see the ideas that are being suggested as well as paint color suggestions if needed.

365: What does staging entail?

Radke: It can be a broad range from just decluttering to painting to a full remodel and any mix in between. We know the things that bring the biggest return and really try to focus on them.

365: If a seller can only afford to remodel one room in the house, what should it be?

Radke: The kitchen always has the biggest return on investment.

365: Once someone has brought you on as a realtor, how do you proceed?

Radke: When we meet for our initial consultation, which usually lasts around one-and-a-half to two hours, I take them through the three stages of selling a home and an introduction to my team.

365: Which are?

Radke: One, what we do prior to putting the house on the market. Two, what we do once we’re on the market. Three, what we do during the negotiations, escrow and closing process. This way, they understand what will happen every step of the way.

A “staycation” wouldn’t seem much like a “vacation” without a place to stay that’s away from home. The Palm Garden Hotel in Thousand Oaks is that special oasis, just off the 101 Freeway, that’ll make your getaway feel like you’re a million miles away.

The Conejo Valley landmark first opened its doors in 1971 as a Holiday Inn. The hotel has changed names and ownership over the years until the early 2000’s when it assumed its current title. In 2012, the property was purchased by local entrepreneur and developer, Harry Selvin, who partnered with Brendan’s Irish Pub & Restaurant to establish the renowned eatery onsite.

“Since its purchase, there’ve been upwards of $4 million dollars in renovations and updates,” says Steven Ortmann, Palm Garden’s general manager. “What makes us different from the big name hotels is our personalized service,” Ortmann says. “There’s nothing cookie cutter about us. It’s our attention to detail that our guests appreciate.”

Though the hotel has become renowned for its corporate and social banquet facilities, Ortmann says the hotel is the perfect escape for couples and families alike. Set on eight-and-a-half sprawling acres, the Palm Garden offers a full buffet complementary breakfast, a weekend Happy Hour, a putting green, a large, tropical swimming pool (with a wading area for kids) and with a life-size chess set, fitness center and room service from Brendan’s.

“When you’re staying here, you don’t feel like you’re in the middle of Thousand Oaks,” says Ortmann, whose been with hotel for the last five years. “It truly is a hidden gem.”

Ortmann describes the perfect weekend getaway:

- Leave work on a Friday afternoon and head over to the hotel for check-in.
- Go to your room and unwind a bit or walk the beautiful, manicured grounds.
- Check out the pool for a Happy Hour drink, from 4-7 p.m., and enjoy some live music.
- Hit a few rounds at the putting green.
- Walk back to your room to change for dinner.
- Take your sweetheart out for a delicious dinner at Brendan’s next door and enjoy either live music or a DJ until 2 a.m. Walk back to your room.
- Wake up Saturday morning for a full buffet breakfast (served until 10 a.m.)
- Head over to the fitness facility to work off your meal.
- Go for a swim and/or relax in a cabana by the pool and order poolside service.
- Repeat activities from the previous evening.

Love to dance? Drive out to the hotel on the first Monday of each month for "Swing Night." Selvin, once a professional drummer, performs with his own 22-piece swing band from 7-10 p.m. Admission is $10.

For those seeking a space for a special occasion, like a wedding or any corporate event, look no further than the Palm Garden, which offers fully inclusive packages to cater to your every need.

Hotel management continues to develop new and exciting “hotel experiences” for guests, according to Ortmann. “We have been and will continue to collaborate with local businesses to create more special events for the local community to experience,” he says.

To book your event or getaway at the Palm Garden Hotel, call (805) 716-4335 or go to their website, www.palmgardenhotel.com.

365: What happens during the negotiations process?

Radke: There are four stages of negotiation that take place during the home selling process. I see myself as my clients' biggest advocate when it comes to price and value. The role that I play starts very early. Every real estate transaction involves at least four negotiations. The first negotiation is when we are showing their property and buyers and agents call on the property. The way we position your property is going to have an effect on the offer we get. Doesn't that make sense? Then when we receive an offer, the way we negotiate the offer can have an effect 1-10 percent up or down. The third negotiation that happens is during the inspection period. The fourth negotiation is when an appraisal is done. There are all kinds of negotiation and problem-solving throughout the process, so hiring an expert in negotiations is critical.

I received my MCNE (master certified negotiation expert) designation earlier this year as the art of the deal is my absolute passion. I’m now taking an eight-week negotiation class from Chris Voss, who is a former FBI hostage negotiator known as the world’s best and the CEO of The Black Swan Group. His book, “Never Split the Difference, Negotiating As If Your Life Depended On It,” is completely fascinating and one of the best business books I’ve read.

365: What’s the most important takeaway from a good realtor?

Radke: Someone who listens first and seeks to understand what his or her client’s objective truly is. Clients should work with an experienced real estate agent who knows the local market inside and out and is highly skilled as a negotiator; someone who is organized, transparent and responsive that will make time for clients and will never make clients feel like they are not a priority. A rock star real estate agent will have good references, an excellent track record and a reputation to be proud of.
